VETSCURSIONS [vet-skur-zhuhns]

proper noun

A non-profit organization that organizes veterinary excursions (vetscursions) to deliver veterinary care to communities in need.

VETSCURSION [vet-skur-zhuhn]

noun

A veterinary excursion. Veterinary care is delivered to communities in need by veterinarians, technicians, and other volunteers.

ABOUT US

Vetscursions was founded by a group of friends, all of whom are animal healthcare professionals, that wanted to see the world while giving back to the communities they visit. Our mission is simple; to deliver veterinary care to communities in need around the world. Our first vetscursions included our core founders and team members but we quickly realized that the desire to provide essential care to animals in remote communities is shared by many other veterinarians, technicians, and animal lovers.

As a group founded by veterinary professionals, we intimately understand the mental and physical benefits that animals have on people. We also recognize that tourism and commercialization can be harmful to the ecosystems that these communities reside in. In addition to providing care to animals, we feel compelled to be as environmentally responsible as possible in the form of reducing plastic waste and our carbon footprint.

The approach to our mission is firmly rooted in the integrative One Health concept embraced by global healthcare leaders such as the World Health Organization and the Centers for Disease Control. Our vision is for healthy pets, healthy people, and a healthy planet.

THE IMPACT

What kind of impact does a sponsor have on a vetscursion? The care provided to animals is considered “core” or “ancillary”. Every animal we treat receives the core, or essential, care unless otherwise specified by their owner. If we are able to secure additional sponsorship and funding for a vetscursion, we offer ancillary care to animals as well. The ancillary care we provide will vary for each community and the needs of the animals.

TYPES OF CARE

Core Care ~ $25 per animal

- Basic health assessments
- Spay and neuter
- Antibiotic administration
- Minor wound care
- General wellness (ear cleaning, nail trims, etc)

Core Care is provided to every animal presented to us for treatment. Consent to treat is always obtained from the owner or local community.

Ancillary Care:

- Vaccination
- Anti-parasitic treatments
- Preventive medications
- Pet food donations
- Microchipping

Ancillary Care is provided to animals based on the needs of the community and available funding. We would love to provide this comprehensive level of care to every animal if possible!

A small portion of funding may also be allocated to minor administrative costs but Vetscursions is dedicated to keeping at least 90% of all donations directly in the communities we serve.
